

Division of Rheumatology
Office of the Division Director

Welcome to the Johns Hopkins Division of Rheumatology!

Thank you for choosing Johns Hopkins Medicine for your health care. At Johns Hopkins Medicine, we are committed to improving the health of the community and the world. For over a century, we have been recognized as a leader in patient care, medical research and teaching. We hope that your time here is as pleasant and comfortable as possible. This packet contains information to better welcome you during your visit.

The Johns Hopkins Division of Rheumatology is a thriving clinical and academic center. Here you will find a team of dedicated specialists providing care to patients affected by a variety of common and uncommon rheumatic disorders. No matter which of our specialty centers you will visit, you should feel comfortable knowing that you are being seen by individuals who are devoted to your care and satisfaction.

While visiting the clinic, you will be greeted by a team of helpful and friendly physicians and staff members. We are committed to ensuring that your visit is thorough and customized to your individual needs. Our goal is to be on time for every patient appointment; however, we may sometimes run behind due to complex medical evaluations, training of medical fellows and emergencies. We sincerely apologize in advance for any delays. We assure you that our friendly staff will keep you well informed during your visit and will assist you in any way possible. Quality care and satisfaction are our highest priorities.

We look forward to seeing you, and thank you again for choosing Johns Hopkins Medicine. Should you have any questions or concerns please feel free to contact our Assistant Administrator, Aaron Williams, by calling 410-550-2020.

Sincerely,

Antony Rosen, MD
Mary Betty Stevens Professor of Medicine
Professor of Pathology
Director, Division of Rheumatology

Aaron Williams, MHA
Assistant Administrator, Rheumatology

